

SHIPPING DOCUMENTATION, PROCEDURES & INCOTERMS 2020

HRDF
Claimable

OVERVIEW

Knowledge of import and export procedures is a key part of the supply chain process. Various types of documentations are involved in export & import activities. It is therefore important to understand the role of each document and its requirements in international trade. Exporter/Importer are also required to comply the documentary requirement of exporter/importer and his country. These requirements also keep on changing. Irregular documents creates problems and result into delay in delivery of the goods. Incoterms are authoritative rules for determining how costs and risks are allocated to the parties and can significantly reduce misunderstandings among traders, thereby minimize trade disputes and litigation.

OBJECTIVES

- To enhance participants knowledge & skills on the Import & Export Procedures.
- Develop Participants knowledge on documentation, Custom Ruling & Facilities.
- To help participants understand the responsibilities of the Seller & Buyer under Incoterms.
